A PASHA'S AMERICAN BRIDE

Is Director-General of Prisons and She a Vassar Graduate.

New York, August 8.—Among the passengers who came over on the last trip of the Etruria was a distinguished-looking foreigner, whom any one would have taken for an Englishman but for the peculiar cut of his clothing and the deep bronze on his face. He was a handsome man, of powerful physique and courtly manner.

His appearance at the Hotel Marlborough attracted more than ordinary attention. It was not until yesterday that his identity was disclosed. He was no less a personage than a real Egyptian Pasha. He is director-general of prisons in Egypt—an official who ranks high in the Court of the Khedive.

His mission to America is to take in custody and escort to Cairo a young lady who is widely known and highly esteemed in society circles in this city. She is Miss Emma Walraven Comfort, the only child of Major Samuel Comfort, a member of the Standard Oil Company.

It will be a great surprise to many who know this beautiful and accomplished young woman to learn that during her recent visit in Egypt she is said to have stolen from the Khedive's palace an article of such priceless value that the Pasha, after consulting with the Khedive, came in person to convey Miss Comfort to his country.

It may also seem singular that although the treaty that exists between the United States and Egypt would not permit even a Pasha to carry off an American girl against her will, Miss Comfort makes no denial of the charge that is made against her and has freely consented to go.

It was at a grand ball that was given in the Khedive's palace that the article Miss Comfort is said to have stolen was first missed. It was the Pasha who discovered its loss. It was his heart.

So she will return with him on the Etruria next Saturday. Miss Comfort will be escorted to Egypt by her husband.

Although a Pasha, the handsome foreigner is an Englishman by birth and education. His name is Harry Crookshank and he is entitled to add F. R. C. to his signature. His father was an English general who was killed in the Indian service.

While yet a medical student Crookshank became attached to the medical corps of the German army, and followed its various fortunes throughout the Franco-Prussian war.

For valiant services he was rewarded by the Empress Augusta, who took from her own finger a ring and presented it to him. He entered the Turkish-Russian war and was in the surgical corps at the Bulgarian massacre and through the Serbian war.

In 1883, when the cholera was raging in Egypt Dr. Crookshank went to Cairo. His fidelity to the suffering Egyptians attracted the Khedive's personal attention, and he was created a Pasha and made director-general of Egyptian prisons.

Miss Comfort is a Vassar graduate. She is tall, fair and stately. Her education was begun at a convent in Paris. When she graduated from Vassar in 1889 she took high honors in the higher sciences, notably in chemistry, mathematics and astronomy.

She went abroad with her mother. While in Egypt they were the guests of Judge Keiley, of the Egyptian judiciary, and it was through his influence that they were presented to the Khedive and afterwards honored with invitations to the grand ball given at his court. It was then the Pasha lost his heart. He kept their company almost during their entire stay in Europe.

The wedding is to be celebrated at noon to-morrow at the country seat of Dr. Pickering, the bride's uncle, at Langhorne, Pa. Numerous guests will go from New York and Philadelphia by special train. Rev. A. E. Westmacott, rector of St. Luke's church, Philadelphia, will officiate.

Miss Bell Wood, of Orange, N. J., is to be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Keiley, of Egypt; Miss Lillie Barsley, Miss Helen Chambers and Miss May Pickering.

Many beautiful presents have been sent the bride, but the one which she will prize above all the rest, and which is to encircle her throat when she is led to the altar, comes from the Khedive. It is a magnificent necklace, made especially by the court jeweller. It is an exact copy of one that was worn by Queen Aah-hotep in the eighteenth dynasty, which began in 1703 B. C.

The necklace is made up of two amethysts, two cornelians and several curiously-colored stones, all of which were carved to represent beetles. These are supported at the top and bottom by a string of lotus flowers wrought in colored enamel.

The stones in the necklace were taken from the tomb of old Egyptian princesses turned into mummies several thousand years ago.

There are but two similar necklaces in the world. Lady Vincent has one and Lady Colin Moncrieffe the other, both of which were presented by the Khedive.

SEDALIA VS. TIPTON.

The Game at Tipton is Won By the Sedalians—The Bouquets and Serenade—The Score.

The game of baseball between the St. Louis Clothing company nine of Sedalia and the Hurst Drug nine, "the pride of Tipton," took place Friday afternoon in that city.

The Sedalia boys arrived there at 1:30 and were met at the train by a drum corps, headed by which they immediately repaired to the fair grounds, where congratulations were exchanged.

Promptly at 3:30 Umpire Goetz called "play ball" and the home club took the field.

The Tiptons scored two runs in the first inning and the Sedalians none. From the result of this inning the situation looked very favorable for the home team, but at the end of the sixth, the tables were turned and the score stood, Sedalians five, Tiptons three.

In the seventh inning the Sedalians scored three runs and the Tiptons none.

The home team went to the bat in the eighth, with an object in view and scored three runs, while the visitors were struck out.

The ninth inning was a winner for the Sedalians, the Tiptons made one run which left the score of 8 to 7 in favor of the Sedalians.

At the moment the game ended, a wild hurrah was sent up from the large crowd which had assembled to witness the game and the Tipton sports looked blue; the ladies of Tipton came to the front and presented each of the Sedalia boys with a handsome bouquet.

The Sedalians, after supper returned the favor with a pleasant serenade and left the city with the best wishes of all.

LOVE'S LINK BROKEN.

The Marriage of Miss Myra Johnson, of Nevada, Mo., to Courtlandt Riley, of St. Louis, Somewhat a Failure.

A Romantic and Tearful Tableau Presented at the Sedalia Union Depot Yesterday Morning—Both Sides of the Story.

From a chair car of the M. K. & T. train which arrived here at 8:15 yesterday morning there alighted a young couple. The gentleman was of medium height, smooth shaven and wore a dark suit of clothes. The lady was neatly attired in a gray traveling dress and a small hat which covered the well kept tresses of raven hue that adorned her head.

Behind them came a young man of 22 or 23 years, accompanying two ladies, who also alighted from the same car.

The young couple proved to be no other than

COURTLAND RILEY

and his bride of St. Louis, and the other persons were C. A. Riley, and Mrs. Riley and Mrs. Wilson, the young groom's brother, mother and aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley repaired to a hotel, where they took breakfast and then returned to the depot.

Nothing of any unusual nature happened until the arrival of the train from Kansas City, at 10:40, when a large crowd congregated on the depot platform and the young bride was seen running back and forth on the platform, with tears in her eyes, crying in appealing tones to Depot Master Carnes to rescue her truant husband from the grasp of those who wished

TO RUIN HER.

Greater and greater the crowd grew, and more exciting did the scene appear.

The distressed bride was taken to the ladies' waiting room, where the cruel eyes of the hard-hearted spectators were constantly fastened upon her.

The young man's brother, C. A. Riley, would hold short consultations with the lady, but it seems he could come to no terms of settlement; she vowing that "they took him away," and the brother seemed to insist that the matter would be straightened with no trouble.

The hungry loungers—hungry for sensational developments—still lingered only to the annoyance of the deserted woman.

At 10:50 o'clock, when the local freight train on the Lexington Branch pulled in to the depot and the "all aboard" was given, she and anxiously looked after the cars as they rumbled on their way, only to return with tears coursing down her rosy cheeks, crying that they had stolen her husband from her. The brother and the two ladies had boarded the train with the young man and left the city. She was escorted to the Palace Hotel where she related to the reporters. "I met my husband at Rockville, near Nevada, Mo., four years ago, where we both resided. My name was Myra Johnson then. We were attending school together. He is nineteen years old and I am twenty. His family moved to St. Louis after that and we kept up a correspondence all the time. He continued writing to me to come to him and we would be married. My mother knew nothing of the affair at all and did not know until I returned home. Both his and my parents were opposed to the match. He kept writing to me to come to him and I finally went and met him at Clayton, Mo., where we were made by Rev. Triplett at that place. From there we went to St. Louis, where he had a position in a boot and shoe store with a salary of $50 per month, and after about a week, his folks began to make it for us. He told me that he would go on the road drumming for the house and his salary would be raised to $75 per month. He requested me to go back home and said that he would join me in a short time. I left St.

HER STORY

MAN AND WIFE

VERY UNPLEASANT

Louis Saturday night and he left Tuesday night.

His family followed him and arrived in Rockville soon after I did. We remained in that place until we came to Sedalia, his people following again. When we were en route here, his aunt, a Mrs. Wilson, came and spoke to him. He introduced me to her but she refused to recognize me. I have no money to amount to anything and neither has he or his folks."

It seems to be a very badly mixed up affair and the brother especially, wants to separate the husband and wife, much against the former's wishes.

Mr. Riley returned to this city last night on the Branch train en route to St. Louis. He was seen by a Bazaar reporter at the union depot and related the following circumstances:

"My brother is only 17 years of age and being so young, can not be held accountable for what he does. This woman has lived in Rockville and there bears a very

QUESTIONABLE REPUTATION.

She went to school with him and drew the boy into this scrape and is wholly to blame for the trouble.

He now repents his actions and I have a letter that will vouch for what I say. He had a good position with a shoe company of St. Louis. She wrote to him continually, wanting to know when she could come to St. Louis and they would

BE MARRIED.

She came to the city and he met her at the Union depot. She remained with him Saturday evening and Sunday, and Monday they went to Clayton, Missouri, and were there married. She was the cause of the poor boy losing his position and was driven to desperation. Saturday we made preparations to have the marriage annulled with his consent, Col. Thomas Thoroughman of St. Louis, being my lawyer. He went to where she was stopping and told her to go home, as he was going to leave the city. She has unlimited influence over the boy and persuaded him to come to her.

I WAS TELEGRAPHED

To come home to my mother who was very ill at that time. We were en route to Sweet Springs and accidentally met him on the train and by earnest pleading on the part of his aunt, Mrs. Wilson, his mother and myself, we got his consent to leave her and she will never see him again.

I have a horror of newspaper notoriety and am very sorry the scene took place at the union depot this morning, but a fate far worse than death awaited him and I could not see him ruined and had it not been for the timely interference all would have been lost. She would have wrecked a happy home; broken a mother's heart and killed his father, who is now ill."

Mr. Riley is very highly connected in St. Louis and bears a good reputation. He produced a letter from his brother which stated that he regretted his hasty actions and wanted to be rid of this woman. Mr. Riley left on the midnight train for St. Louis and it is hoped that the unpleasantness the marriage has caused, will soon be rectified.

MISSOURI INCIDENTS.

THE BULLING CASE.

Louis Bulling the wife murderer, who made his escape from jail at Savannah the week before the day set for his execution and who was captured in Chicago and returned there July 4, was brought into the Circuit Court at Savannah yesterday and the day of his execution set for Friday, September 4. Prosecuting Attorney Huggins of that County on Wednesday filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus directing Sheriff Berry to take Bulling before the court. The writ was made returnable and yesterday afternoon Bulling was taken into court. His counsel, Hon. David Rea, and Judge Sanford, claimed that that court has no jurisdiction in Bulling's case and therefore could not fix a day for his execution. They claim as this case was appealed to the Supreme Court and the decision of the trial court affirmed that it was now out of the jurisdiction of that court and the Supreme Court was the proper tribunal to set the day for the execution. Judge Anthony decided against the defendant's counsel and set the day. The defence will now try to get the case before the Supreme Court on a writ of error.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT TO A FARM HAND.

He was working with a thresher, and in descending from a stack of grain slid off face down. A pitch fork had been left standing against the stack, times down. The point of the handle struck him, penetrating the pelvic cavity to a depth of 12 inches. He was assisted to the house and medical assistance called. At last reports he was alive, and hopes of his recovery.

PLAYING JESSE JAMES.

Ohio People Have a Taste of Old Times in Missouri.

Lima, O., August 8.—This morning, at Columbus Grove, a town of 2,000 people, twelve miles north of here, Cashier T. J. Maple opened the Exchange bank, of which his father is proprietor, and laid out about $2,000 near the cashier's window.

About 8:30 a man appeared at the door with a revolver in each hand. He immediately began shooting.

Cashier Maple was struck twice, once in the arm and once in the right side.

As he fell to the floor Farmer William Vandebark, aged 60, entered the door, having come to get his money for some hogs he had just sold. The robber turned and shot him through and through. The old man fell dead in his tracks.

A third man sat in the lobby of the bank paralyzed with fear. He was not molested.

The desperado then seized $1,500 in greenbacks, shoved them into the pockets of his sack coat and darted out of the door, shouting, "I'm a second Jesse James."

A crowd had been attracted by the shots, but there was a scattering when the wild eyed murderer appeared on the street with a revolver in either hand and shooting indiscriminately.

Henry Buck failed to get out of the way fast enough and was struck down by a bullet.

The fellow ran in the outskirts of the town and disappeared into a big cornfield.

The desperado is described as being short and heavy set, with a full face and a small black mustache. He wore a black alpaca cap, a black sack coat, blue trousers, with a white stripe, and no vest. He appeared to be about 30 or 35 years old.

A posse was quickly organized and started in pursuit. Another posse started from West Cairo and at this time Sheriff O'Neill and Chief of Police Aplas are organizing an armed band here to assist in the search. If found the fellow will be shot down like a dog.

It is thought that the wounds of Maple and Buck are not necessarily fatal.

Vandebark, who was killed, was a prosperous farmer in Union township. He leaves a large family.

A big reward is offered for the capture of the villain.

A later report is that soon after the bank opened the stranger entered a hardware store which adjoins the bank and asked for two revolvers. After loading them, he pointed them at the proprietor's head, telling him to take his pay out of that. Then he made the raid on the bank, after which, getting into a buggy, which an accomplice had ready, the couple quickly escaped.

SHOT TO DEATH IN THE WOODS.

Wapakoneta, O., August 8.—Word has reached here by telephone that the Columbus Grove bank robber was overtaken in the woods and shot to death.

LOWELL VERY LOW.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 8.—The friends of James Russell Lowell are becoming alarmed over his illness. It is three weeks now since his case became serious and since then his condition has been without change. His trouble seems to have its seat in the liver, but the physicians give no name to it.
